

Ann Heirman, Ph.D. (1998) in Oriental Languages and Cultures, is professor of Chinese Language and Culture and head of the Centre for Buddhist Studies at Ghent University in Belgium.

She has published extensively on Chinese Buddhist monasticism and the development of disciplinary rules, including Rules for Nuns according to the Dharmaguptakavinaya (Motilal Banarsidass, 2002), The Spread of Buddhism (Brill, edited volume with Stephan Peter Bumbacher, 2007), and A Pure Mind in a Clean Body (with Mathieu Torck, Academia Press, 2012).

I. Studies

- BA Roman Philology, 1985, Ghent University
- MA Roman Philology, 1987, Ghent University (MA dissertation: “Capo e Testa e il concetto di estremità superiore : applicazione e teoria della strutturazione lessicale”)
- Aggregation Higher Secondary Education in Roman Philology, 1988, Ghent University
- MA Oriental Languages and Cultures, 1994, Ghent University (MA dissertation: “The eight Pārājikadharmas”)
- Aggregation Higher Secondary Education in Oriental Languages and Cultures, 1994, Ghent University
- Ph.D. Oriental Languages and Cultures, 1998, Ghent University (Title: Disciplinary Rules for Buddhist Nuns, Bhikṣuṇīvibhaṅga of the Dharmaguptakas)

II. Research/Teaching

- Assistant French Language, Liaoning University, China, 1989
- Assistant Researcher, National Fund for Scientific Research, Belgium, 1995-1999
- Assistant Professor, Chinese Language and Culture, Ghent University, Belgium, 1999-2003
- Professor, Chinese Language and Culture, Ghent University, Belgium, since 2003; full professor since 2013
- Head of the Department of Oriental Languages and Cultures, Ghent University, 2006-2017
- Head of the Faculty Student Administration, since 2013
- Head of the Centre for Buddhist Studies, Ghent University, since 2013

Details: <http://research.flw.ugent.be/en/ann.heirman>